Risk
Stock markets, especially foreign markets, are volatile and can decline significantly in response to adverse issuer, political, regulatory, market, or economic developments. Foreign securities are subject to interest rate, currency exchange rate, economic, and political risks, all of which are magnified in international equity. You may have a gain or loss when you sell your shares. "Risk" refers to the possibility of loss of principal, or alternatively to a rate of investment return below expectations or requirements. While volatility (price fluctuation) is not synonymous with risk, it is true that high volatility on the downside results in loss, and therefore higher volatility is associated with higher risk. Volatility, however results in realized losses only if securities are sold after a fall in price.

Statement on Sustainability
Disclosure of UC's Sustainability Investment Screening Process
As reflected in the UCRSP Investment Implementation Manual, the University believes that investing in businesses with principled ethics and sound environmental and social practices simply makes good business sense. While short-term gains can be garnered from businesses taking excessive risks in governance, environmental or social standards, such gains can erode quickly and drastically; therefore, we must take a measured approach to the risk and rewards available in the universe of investment options. The Office of the Chief Investment Officer of the Regents (OCIO) works with the investment managers to screen for identified ESG risks, including, for example, the manufacturing of civil firearms. In selecting and monitoring the type of companies included in the funds, the fund managers are responsible for complying with UC's sustainable investing policy. Mutual funds and collective investment trusts that include assets from other organizations are not subject to UC's sustainable investing policy.
This fund is screened.
